$300,000 FIRE HIT STERLING, DIXON CALLED

Northwestern Wire Co. Plant Scene of Bad Blaze This Morn

The Northwestern Barb Wire Company's plant at Sterling was the scene of a $300,000 fire this morning, which completely wiped out the original factory east wing of the building. The fire started at 7:45 in the extreme part of the old stone east wing building. A workman who was engaged in making a weld with an electric welding machine, saw sparks alight on the oil soaked floor and within a few seconds, the room was a mass of flame.

The blaze spread rapidly throughout the old section of the plant to all floors and 15 workmen were trapped by flames and smoke on the second floor. They succeeded in making their escape through a window onto the roof of an adjoining building. Rumors were current for some time after the blaze was under control, to the effect that one and possibly three men had perished in the flames, but at 11 o'clock, all of the employees had been accounted for and the report was discredited.

Dixon Firemen Called

Rock Falls and Dixon fire departments were summoned, when the flames threatened to spread throughout the entire plant. The company maintains its own power plant, and this was cut off very shortly after the start of the fire on account of the danger of employees and firemen being electrocuted by the high voltage wires, and the factory sprinkler system was thus put out of commission.

The Dixon department made a record run to Sterling over the detour route arriving in less than a half hour. The Rock Falls department arrived within a few minutes and the pumpers from Sterling and Rock Falls did effective work at the scene of the fire while the Dixon department was held in reserve at the Sterling station to answer other calls.

Officials of the company announced at noon that the loss would reach a figure of $300,000 which is completely covered by insurance. The loss to the building was estimated at $50,000 and $250,000 to machinery and equipment.

Mr. Dillon, president of the company was in Chicago on business when the fire broke out and he was immediately located and notified. He left Chicago as soon as possible, making the trip to Sterling by airplane and arriving before the fire was extinguished.

The dense black smoke from the fire could be seen in this city.

Last Rites Sunday for Horace Eastman

The funeral of Horace Eastman, whose death in an Iowa City, Ia., hospital Thursday morning, after a year's illness with tuberculosis, was announced in Thursday evening's Telegraph, will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of his mother, Mrs. Addie Eastman, 507 First street, Rev. L. W. Walter of St. Paul's Lutheran church officiating, and with burial in the Burkett cemetery.

The deceased was born in Eldena, Dec. 30, 1884, being aged 43 years, 4 months and 18 days at the time of his death. He spent his childhood in South Dixon township, receiving his education in the schools there and had many friends in this community who mourn his passing. He is survived by his mother, five sisters, Mrs. Alice Pontius of Dixon, Mrs. Anna Nagle Bradshaw of Walla Walla, Wash., Mrs. Louis Jetter of Springfield, Mrs. Sam Pelton and Mrs. Richard Darby, of Dixon; and two brothers, Simeon and Wilson of Dixon. Four brothers and sisters died in infancy and his father, the late T. L. Eastman, passed away eight months ago.

Funeral Mrs. Maude Ferguson Tomorrow

The funeral of Mrs. Maude Ferguson will be held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas L. Stokes, 801 East Fellows street, Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. A. Turley Stevenson, pastor of the First Methodist church will officiate and the remains will be taken to Viroqua, Wis., for interment.

George W. Webster Died this Morning

George W. Webster, for many years a respected citizen of Dixon, died at his home, 416 First avenue, at 9 o'clock this morning after an extended illness. Funeral arrangements had not been completed this afternoon, and these, with the obituary will be published later.

Chicago, May 18.—(AP)—Bruno Bogdon's imagination, which already has moved a small mountain of sand, finally has put police in a pique.

As Johnny's eight-year-old companion, Bruno Bogdon, whose imagination led authorities on a series of futile searches, sat in jail, men were put to work dragging the river at the place the boys were accustomed to fish.

FERN CLIFF

The high, old cliff stands like a sentinel
Above the town, and reaches toward the sky.
While on its sides grow thick—whence comes its name—
Green ferns; bold brakes, and maiden-hair, so shy.
In heavy fronds of broad and narrow leaves.

Here pink arbutus sprays its sweet perfume,
Jack-in-the-pulpit, and the violet
Greet gladsome spring, and vie in vagrant bloom.

Fern Cliff To all who climb its winding paths
And stand upon the wind-swept summit, high,
Unfolds a vista, gorgeous to behold.
Of verdant field, and hills, and turquoise sky.
While in a cradle of the hill-locked vale.

The village snugly nestles, down below;
Like a wee child within its mother's arms,
Cooing and happy, with its face aglow.

Chicago, May 18—(AP)—Club-men have protested against holding bathing beauty contests in Chi-ago at the convention of the Illinois Federation of Women Clubs which closes today.

Copies of a resolution condemning the contests were sent to Mayor Thompson and George M. Getz, promoter of the Tunney-Dempsey championship fight last fall, who suggested they be held here this summer.

Other resolutions passed included support of military training in schools and colleges; recommending that voters support dry candidates for both local and national office; support of the Chicago World's Fair in 1933; consent to give junior clubs representation on convention programs; and to open schools in the city and state.

CINDERELLA AGAIN

The Cinderella girl of the north woods' bobs up again with the return from their honeymoon of Lena Wilson and James Stillman, Jr. The romance of the little yellow-haired girl who helped her sweetheart's mother in her Canadian home and one of America's richest heirs fed the romance-hungry hearts of the whole nation. Now Young Bud says he must get to work.
Lena is a poised young matron and the story is just beginning, for "Society" has never had a real chance at the little backwoods girl on whom it counted for a sensation only to have her carried off to Europe for a year.
Here's betting on Lena!

SHE'S SPANKED

The chastising of Mrs. Helen T.
Baille, "The Black List Lady" who started all the rumpus for the D. A.
R. when she told of their taboo list was inevitable.

One might argue that loss of membership in an organization of which she disapproves cannot hurt the lady very much. But that's the very point.
One can criticize people and institutions one loves and feel worse over their faults than over those of people and things not close to one. Honest critics are any person's or institution's best friends.

A WOMAN'S JOB

For over 60 years, Mary Miller of Iowa lived and worked as a man, doing heavy farm work like the huskiest of men. Her sex was only recently discovered. Now they're bound Mary shall not go back to work as a man.
Mary rebels and says she'll die if they don't let her go back to the grain fields. Her panic is perhaps not much less than that of hundreds and thousands of women who learn that tradition insists on "woman's work" for them regardless of their natural bents. Custom gives one job to all women, but apportions its male jobs according to individual bent.

CALVES LEAVING

Women are growing shorter and ruining their legs because they don't walk and because they wear high heels, according to Surgeon Charles Mayo. High heels are destroying the calves, he says, and the automobile is making women short because they don't walk.

But it's just the same old story of fashion first and health second. Fashion is always beauty to women. If all women are ruining their legs in the same way at the same time, on with the ruining, says woman.

Other dressmakers show straw embrodered jackets of chiffon or loose straight jackets of printed satin.
Most of them are finger tip length.

Major Bullis also pointed out many advantages to women in the proposed calendar.

Short Interviews With Famous Women

(By NEA Service)

"Waiting for inspiration" is no valid alibi for not accomplishing things, according to Fannie Hurst, famous author of many novels.

"There may be such a thing as inspiration which floods a person's being and causes wonderful results without much effort," Miss Hurst says. "There may be born writers who work only under its influence.
But I have never met this magic thing. Nor do I know persons who have met it either."

Girls pay $10 each a week for the privilege of waiting on table in a chain of perhaps the most exclusive teashops in the country, according to the court testimony of one of the girls who charged the manager of the shop in which she worked refused to return all of her last week's $10 when she quit.

So many modern tendencies tie up with this revelation. The bad pass to which our ever-increasing tipping system has brought things, for instance, when employers can make employees pay for the privilege of being tipped. The fight for jobs, too, in this modern world is illustrated by this little story, to say nothing of the bad working conditions which so often hide behind the flowers and silver and crystal and rich pottery which the customer sees. Even the fact that the girls may earn at least $30 a week after paying $10 for the job, disproves nothing. It's a bad system.

Miss Wood Again
Guest of Honor

Miss Anna Wood of Dixon, one of the principal brides of the near future, who is soon to wed Chester Clauseen of Sterling, was the guest of honor last evening at a delightful bridge party held at the home of Mrs.
William Kew. At this time Mrs.
Kew, Miss Bess Benson and Miss Ethel Jamison entertained for Miss Wood. The Kew home was fragrant with the perfume of lilacs and tulips, the flowers used in the charming decorations. Miss Helen Winger was awarded the favor for high honors at bridge, and Miss Lena Winger was awarded the second favor. Miss Anna Wood was presented with a lavish guest favor. Delicious refreshments were enjoyed, completing the happy evening.

ONLY A SLIP TWIXT GIRL AND GRIPPE—

By Olive Roberts Barton
"Tuberculosis is increasing among girls," said a doctor from Ohio at a recent medical convention. "Records show it to be increasing among girls and decreasing among boys."

No one needs to be told the reason, for too little clothing and too little food are old stories by this time.
Girls themselves are the only ones who deny it. They will learn only by experience and in this case experience is too dear a teacher.

The remedy lies with parents. It is up to them to save the girls in spite of themselves.

When I see a neat little figure clad in its spring finery, thinly socked and thinly shod—and as certainly ed rugs, braided rugs, fancy work, etc. were shown.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and approved.

Roll call was answered with verses about birds, which were much enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held
June 6th, at the home of Mrs.
Charles Mensch, with Mrs. A. R.
Beede as assistant hostess.

Legion Auxiliary

Meeting Wednesday

At the regular meeting of the Legion Auxiliary Wednesday in Legion Hall, plans were made for visiting some of the schools and helping with the work for the Memorial day exercises. Several members volunteered to help with the parade for this day.
Delegates were elected to the district convention to be held at Morrison June 12. They were Mesdames Nona Pomeroy, Corabel
George, Dorothy Teschendorf, Hattie
George, Ruby McIntyre. Alternates were Mesdames Louise Withers, Mazie Kelly, Catherine Kelly, Mabel O'Malley, Louise Graff. The color bearers and sergeant-at-arms of the Dixon unit are to act in their offices for the district convention.

Men and women go in for gymnastics. They train their arm muscles, their legs, they swing clubs, and do exercises on schedule so they can acquire skill in this or that and make their bodies behave a certain way.

"Why not try training the mind so it will work on schedule too? Practically every writer I know does this very thing."

"It is the systematized mind and a regular schedule that accomplishes things. If anyone asked my advice I'd say:

"Don't wait for inspiration. Get to work. Train your brain."

Miss Real Hostess Party Dixon Inn

Miss Dorothy Real of Sterling was hostess to the members of her bridge club at the Dixon Inn last evening, entertaining at a bridge dinner. There were twelve guests. Masses of pink sweet peacock were the table decorations and the pretty favors and talles were in various pastel colorings. Mrs.
Grace Smith of Mt. Carroll; Miss Florence Anderson and Miss Marian McKinney of Dixon were guests beside the club members. Mrs. Smith was awarded the favor for high score;
Miss Ruth Worthington was awarded the second favor and Miss Dorothy Davis received the favor in cutting.
The entire evening was voted one of great pleasure by all attending.

THE COST OF CURIOSITY.

The price of American curiosity is tremendous, writes a critic in a long comment on the way the countryside has flocked to see C. C. Pyle's coast-to-coast runners as they passed through nearby towns.

"If Prince Carol, Rumanian cast-off, should come to America now for a lecture series, he could wheedle us out of a million dollars in a month," the writer went on to say.

Perhaps we do pay a tremendous price for curiosity, but after all, is it a fault? And isn't the price we pay nearly always worth it?

We are still a new country, with an insatiable desire to learn. True, perhaps, we haven't remedied our gullibility a great deal since P. T. Barnum brought his strange Fiji mermaid and woolly horses to our attention but we have learned at least all that we care to know about Fiji mermaids and woolly horses and are wiser thereby.

We go on and on, seeking the genuine; and if we must experiment with a lot of frauds to find it, well, we must, that's all. The ideal of sincerity and truth is hard to discover. Perhaps it is only a dream, after all, but in our pursuit of it, we have not lost but gained.

Pyle's runners, in their way, represent an ideal, despite the attendant ballyhoo and get-rich-quick aspect of the affair. They are men running several thousand miles, from one end of the country to the other. They are athletes with a grim determination and endurance about them that must be admired. If we pay ridiculous prices to see them, we are learning; we are getting nearer to the truth we seek; we are seeing, at least, what we pay for, and learning what we pay to learn.

We might pay a million to see Prince Carol. But our nation again could be admirable—that of hearing from the lips the story that we always have vaguely guessed at, a tale of old world romance, intrigue and adventure that, to most of us, would be worth the price.

We pay a tremendous price for our curiosity. But only through satisfaction of the desire to see and learn do we advance.

THE PATH TO KNOWLEDGE.

There are at the present day fully six times as many students in American colleges and universities as there were 30 years ago, according to figures compiled by the Federal Bureau of Education.

There is something for you to think about, if you are beginning to get pessimistic about our future. Grant that not all of our colleges are as efficient as they ought to be; grant that many young people do not attend them primarily to get an education; nevertheless the figures reflect a spread of enlightenment, a desire for knowledge, that are tremendously encouraging.

A democracy, to function at all, must be educated. These figures indicate that America is finding the right path. A set of Shakespeare to be given to Gene Tunney, signed such names as Johnny Applesauce, Jack Dempsey, the Duke of Muldoon. The younger generation simply hasn't any reverence any more—even for a prize fighter.

These are dangerous days. A man never knows when he goes home early whether or not the lawnmower is going to be in the front yard.

A boy, denied the use of the family car, killed his father and mother and brothers and sisters. Probably that should be a lesson for parents.

The Ford free publicity has been falling off tremendously since the standard American joke became a cigaret lighter.

China and Japan are at war. The Chinese probably will be favorites in the betting; they certainly have had enough practice.

A man suing for divorce in Los Angeles declares his wife put him out and he couldn't get along without his mother-in-law. Sounds like a misprint.

A New Jersey man cut his throat and smoked a cigaret. That'll be about the next thing you'll see in the cigaret ads.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK

REG U.S. PAT. OFF.
1928 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

The tree trunk moved along the planks." The TINYMITES all shouted, "Thanks! We're glad to learn what we can, so some day we'll be smart." Another saw was swung around, and lengthwise through the tree was ground. The TINYMITES were much amazed to see planks fall apart.

"Oh, my, but they are nice and new," said Cappy. "Tell us what you do with all those planks. I'll bet they'd make a teeter-totter grand." The woodsmen said, "You bet they will, but I'll build something better still. And, when I do, I'll ask you TINYMITES to lend a hand."

The woodsmen laughed, and said, "Oh, no, I fear that cart would never go. The planks are much too big, and they're as clumsy as can be. They might be made to roll around, but they would bump along the ground. The bark upon the edges makes them very rough, you see."

"They must be put to some good use, or else you wouldn't cut them loose," said Scouty. And the woodsmen smiled. "You're right, young man," said he. "Each piece of wood that you see drop is made into a table top. And when each top is polished, it's a pretty sight to see."

"I'll show you now how we make

Darling Mom:

I'm still too much provoked with Alan to let him read your letter, because even if you can find excuses for his conduct I'm not so ready to forgive him. If he thinks he can get into the habit of letting his business come before consideration for me and get away with it I don't see what I can expect in the future.

Anyhow he's always telling me that you think as much of him as you do of me, so whenever you take his part it just makes it that much harder for me to handle him. It would spoil him utterly to read all the nice things you say about him. So he doesn't get to see your last letter.

You certainly are a wonderful mother-in-law. Alan thinks the world of you. I wish you'd scold him once in a while, for a change; for if he isn't to take too seriously that part of the wedding ceremony that made him promise to cherish me, then he ought to forget about the "obey" part, too. Alan absolutely forbade me to come down to the office.

He said I treated his stenographer as though she were poison ivy when she was here at the apartment. Of course I didn't do anything of the kind, but what did he want me to do? Serve her tea and ask her to stay to dinner? I would have liked to ask her where all gallstones are made, every such growth is a tombstone erected to the evil memory of the germs which lie dead within it." Normally all of the germs from the intestinal tract which have passed into the blood stream are destroyed as the blood stream passes through the liver, but occasionally this cleansing process is incomplete and some organisms escape destruction and are carried into the gall bladder. This organ, as a protective measure, secretes a substance called cholesterol, which surrounds and imprisons the clumped germs and which, with the addition later of other organic salts, forms what we know as gallstones.

Half of all the cases of gallstones occur in people over forty, three-quarters occur in women, and nine-tenths of these occur in women who have borne children. In a third of all the cases there is a previous history of typhoid fever and in a quarter there is a previous history of appendicitis. They are most common in people who take little exercise, who eat and drink to excess, who suffer from constipation, and who are overweight. It is not within our power to prevent them entirely, but it is clear that the causes which predispose them can be prevented by due attention to the laws of hygiene, especially as regards bowel function, diet and normal weight.

It was formerly believed that the great majority of gallstones was innocent, but it is now realized that the reverse is true. They may not cause the characteristic symptoms of acute pain, colic, and jaundice, but they can be responsible for numberless vague digestive symptoms, once believed to have no relation to them, and even symptomless stones may be responsible for disease of the liver or may lead to cancer of the gall bladder. Moreover, they may become obstructed in the gall ducts or in the intestinal tract, as nature endeavors to expel them, and death will result if the condition is not promptly remedied.

Gallstones, therefore, should never be ignored. They must be treated and what is more important, they must be treated surgically. There is no way in which they can be dissolved by drugs or eliminated by medical means.

The operation should be done within a reasonably short time after the disease is diagnosed. The death rate for early operation is small and the results are excellent, the death rate for the delayed operation is very high and the results are poor. In this condition the surgeon must exercise his art and exercise it promptly for, to quote Moynihan again, while nature is an admirable physician, in gallstones, at least, she is a very poor surgeon, and surgery in this disease is the treatment par excellence.

LIDO-VENICE SUBWAY SEEN IN FIVE YEARS

Venice—(AP)—The Lido, one of the most fashionable summer resorts in the world, may within five years be connected with Venice by a tunnel under the lagoon just off the shores of the city of canals.

Business men here who have large interests in the summer concessions on the island a mile from Venice are pushing the project in an effort to get municipal and perhaps governmental support.

Transportation between the great hotels on the island and the railroad station at Venice is at present solely by means of boats. A steamboat-bus line operates between the Lido and Venice, and gondolas also make the trip, though taking more time.

The Lido has been a large factor in bringing American, English and German people of wealth to Venice.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
NATHANIEL DANN, struggling artist, is engaged to VIRGINIA BREWSTER, whose father is a Wall Street financier. After losing his fortune in speculation, BREWSTER died suddenly, and leaves his daughter penniless.

NIEL urges VIRGINIA to marry him at once, but an old family friend, FREDERICK DEAN, and his daughter, CLARISSA, persuade her to make her temporary home with them. This angers NIEL, for he suspects DEAN's motives and does not like CLARISSA's return to his work and quarrels with his model, CHIRL, who is jealous of VIRGINIA.

Meanwhile, VIRGINIA is unhappy in her new home, so she resolves to tell NIEL her fears, but when she phones his studio in the evening, CHIRL answers. She tries to fight suspicion but she cannot bring herself to call him.

That evening CLARISSA places VIRGINIA beside her father at the dinner table, and the obvious discomfort of MRS. FARLEY, who apparently resents the presence of VIRGINIA in the DEAN home. After dinner CLARISSA and her father go out to a night club, and VIRGINIA goes to her room, leaving the others to play cards. MRS. FARLEY tells DEAN that he cannot throw her over for that younger girl without hurting him, and won't let him. Rather than face a scandal which he knew would spoil his chance of winning VIRGINIA, he meets her demand. His next problem is to dispose of NIEL.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

ANDREW BARROWS was head of a big advertising agency. An important man, but not so important that he was not ready to see Frederick Dean, a club crony, at any time.

They had a friendly little chat, a perfectly clear and to-the-point chat, in Andrew's sumptuous office, and then Dean took his departure. Before he closed the door behind him, however, he was careful to repeat one specific injunction:

"Don't let my name slip out!"

Later that day Nathaniel Dann received a telephone call to make an appointment with Andrew Barrows. Nathaniel wished to turn away from commercial work to devote himself to the serious side of art, but the thought that this interview might lead to something that would be a means of hastening the establishment of a home for Virginia helped him decide to see Barrows at three o'clock.

He had hoped all that morning to hear from Virginia. At the same time she was trying to summon courage to call him while drooping and reviving alternately under despair and hope.

After luncheon she could no longer bear the agony of uncertainty, and she sought her room to put in the call. Nathaniel answered instantly.

"Virginia," he cried when he heard her voice, and Virginia's heart throbbed with joy.

"Can you come up?" she responded. "Right away?"

"I'll hop the sub, it's quickest. Oh, wait a minute; it's nearly two o'clock, sweetheart, and I've got an appointment downtown at three. I'm afraid I can't make it. Will you wait for me until four? I'll be there before if I can. It seems ages since I saw you. How are you?"

His voice took on a tone of anxiety. "Everything all right?"

"Not quite . . . no, there's something wrong, Niel. But I feel better, just talking to you. You'll hurry, won't you?"

"I'd fly if I could. But whatever's wrong, we'll fix it up. Don't you worry. I think something good is waiting for me downtown. The Barrows people, they telephoned they wanted to see me. It may mean a lot of work. Wish me luck."

Virginia wished him luck and Nathaniel certainly thought when

"Niel, it's you. I've found out that that girl, Chirl, was in your studio yesterday morning."

He talked with Andrew Barrows later that it was working like a charm. Until he was told that the work was to be done in San Francisco. He was too disappointed to speak at once.

"Are you prepared to leave immediately?" Mr. Barrows inquired. Nathaniel shook his head. "I can't leave New York," he said regretfully. "It's impossible."

Barrows scowled. "But we are offering you a wonderful opportunity," he pointed out, unceasingly. Nathaniel thought, "He realized it well enough. In fact, he had been swept off his feet when he heard the amount of money he was promised for his services.

"I'm much obliged to you," he assured Barrows; "but I can't consider the offer. I have other interests that will keep me in New York, for a while at least."

"Well, think it over. We will allow you until the day after tomorrow to give us an answer. Perhaps, in the meantime, you could dispose of the other matters. You'd be a fool to turn this chance down."

Nathaniel took his problem to Virginia. He decided on the way up town that he would accept Barrows' offer if, by any chance, he could persuade her to go with him.

"I intend to, Niel, because I can't go on not knowing the truth. Ever since yesterday afternoon the world has seemed like a bottomless pit of despair to me."

"I know you couldn't be happy here," Nathaniel told her flatly.

"It's not the Deans, Niel, it's you. You see, I've found out that that girl, Chirl, was in your studio yesterday morning!"

She saw Nathaniel start guiltily, and her lips drew together with the pain of it.

"She's a bohemian, you know," he said lamely.

"Is that why she told me I had the wrong number?"

"I don't know why she did that, Virginia; I couldn't reach the phone in time to stop her. But, look here, sweetheart, you don't mean that I should think you worried on that account?"

"Perhaps you artists are different from other people," Virginia said a trifle tartly; "but even if I could believe it were proper for her to be there why should you deceive me about it, Niel?"

"Virginia, please don't say that. I've never deliberately deceived you about anything. I confess I might have let you know you had the right number in the first place, but I realized it is difficult for anyone who doesn't know her to understand Chirl. She's as irresponsible as a child; I didn't see how I could tell you then and make you understand. She was right there."

"That's partly what hurts, Niel—to have her know that you let her interfere once."

"It didn't pass unrebuked, Virginia. I gave her the devil."

"You haven't explained what she was doing there."

"She was there when I got home. Had cleaned up the place, scrubbed it inside and out, and when I found her she was dead to the world. I hadn't the heart to disturb her. Virginia, so I read myself to sleep in a chair and the next thing I knew she was answering your ring."

Virginia felt a little ashamed. "You could have told me enough to let her know that we don't have secrets," she said definitely. "You see what it leads to, Niel. I've agonized over the whole thing so terribly. It did look bad for you, you'll admit that, won't you?"

"I don't blame you, sweetheart, but I'm sorry you didn't have more faith in me. I'd trust you blindly, Virginia."

"Wait until your pride is wounded and see if you will."

"All the time, first lady of my land. There isn't anything or anyone that can make me doubt you until you yourself tell me you don't love me."

"You make me feel very small and mean, Niel."

"That's good," he assured her; "you ought to feel like a worm."

"Oh, Niel, I do, but it's sweet to feel that way. I'd rather be a happy worm than an offended goose."

"That's right, but while we're on this subject, I'd like to ask you how you found out all my sins?"

"I recognized Miss Mond's voice when I telephoned you again yesterday afternoon."

"And I was only gone 10 minutes," Nathaniel mourned. "I was so upset because I didn't hear from you. I imagined all kinds of things. I imagined that Old Highhat was keeping you locked up in a closet and feeding you on gold, or taking you around to show you how the wives of poor husbands slave in the kitchens. So I came up here last night and patrolled the place until Clarissa and her boy friend came in."

"Didn't Miss Mond tell you I called? I asked her to."

"I suppose she forgot it, Virginia. She would."

"Yes, I think she would," Virginia said slowly. "Oh, Niel," she cried suddenly, her eyes widening with fear; "Niel, I'm afraid of her and of . . ."

"Ah, good afternoon, Mr. Dann."

Nathaniel and Virginia turned quickly, the latter a little embarrassed. Frederick Dean was coming toward them from the hall.

St. Charles School Boys to Have Camp
Springfield, Ill., May 18—(AP)—Boys at St. Charles school eligible to favors may be taken to a summer camp this year as a result of an opinion delivered by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom today.

R. W. Ide, director of the Department of Public Welfare after a conference with Major Butler, director in charge of St. Charles, asked whether Butler could be allowed to take a group of his cadets to a summer camp for two weeks.

Major Butler during his management of the institution, has taken many of the boys on various sightseeing trips to repay them for good behavior. It is his intention, he declares, to continue to do so.

In his ruling Carlstrom declared that taking delinquent children to a camp under state supervision, may be lawfully considered a part of training and education.

His opinion, he said, would not, however hold true in a case where a boy has been prosecuted and sentenced under provision of the criminal code.

Major Butler recently conducted several companies of his "boys" through the state department and treated them to a circus while at the capital city.

OUR TREES

INDIANS NAMED TUPELO

Glossy foliage which turns a fiery red in the fall is the chief beauty of the tupelo.

"Tupelo" is the name given the tree by the Indians. In the lumber trade the term includes the wood of the tupelo gum, black gum, water gum and sour tupelo. All of these gums of which the tupelo and black gum are the most abundant and most important commercially, are water-loving trees and grow principally in the tide-water swamps. Louisiana is the leading tupelo state.

Within the last 10 years tupelo gradually has come to be marketed under its own name, though often it gets other names, such as "bay poplar."

The wood has a fine, uniform texture, does not splinter easily and is easy to work. Tupelo is used principally for boxes which range from cigar boxes to large packing cases. In boxes for the higher class cigars a veneer of Spanish cedar is used over a tupelo core.

The second largest use for tupelo is for planing mill products, especially flooring and inside finish. For factory floors and platforms subject to heavy wear tupelo has proved very satisfactory. It is also used for woodware, furniture, sewing machines and laundry appliances.

LIGHTWEIGHTS TO MIX SATURDAY IF WEATHER PERMITS

Delay Expected to be Beneficial to Jimmy McLarnin

MCLARNIN

BULLETIN

New York, May 18—(AP)—Tex Rickard announced today that Sammy Mandell will defend his lightweight championship against Jimmy McLarnin tomorrow night, weather permitting. The promoter was authorized by the boxing commission to again defer the bout on account of rain. Originally scheduled for last night, it was postponed until tonight when clouds gathered in the afternoon. The clouds were followed by a hard rain today.

New York, May 28—(AP)—Weather permitting Jimmy McLarnin, Pacific coast slugger, will get his delayed "shot" at Sammy Mandell's lightweight title at the Polo Grounds tonight.

For the second time in a year Tex Rickard's proverbial luck with the elements failed him and he was forced to postpone the 15-round titanic battle until tonight. Rain forced Tex to call off a bout between Jimmy Maloney and Jack Sharkey a year ago.

The promoter decided to call off the lightweight struggle yesterday afternoon when the skies held more than a hint of rain.

McLarnin was a half pound under the class limit but the title-holder was forced to go through a brisk work-out at the offices of the New York State Athletic Commission in order to get in under the wire. Mandell was a quarter pound over 135 pounds when he first stepped on the scales but managed to just make the grade after some vigorous calisthenics.

Delay Helps McLarnin

If either fighter derived any benefit from the 24-hour delay in answering the opening bell, boxing experts believed it would be McLarnin. If the weather permits the bout to be held tonight, the principals will not be required to weigh in again.

This means that McLarnin probably will enter the ring weighing close to 140 pounds. The extra poundage will make the slugging coast lad just that much stronger. His sensational campaign through the lightweight contenders and into a match for the title was achieved chiefly through the power of his punch.

The champion, on the other hand, would find any extra weight a handicap. His forte is speed and extra weight would only cut that down. Mandell has no intention of trying to beat McLarnin at his own game of slugging. Remembering the fate of Sid Terrell, who went down and out before the crushing power of the coast lad's right hand in one round, the champion's plans are based almost entirely on the theory that his speed, footwork and boxing skill will prevent McLarnin from landing solidly.

Rickard's hope that 60,000 persons would pay to see New York's first lightweight championship battle in five years would not have been realized had he staged the battle last night.

Odds were unchanged by the postponement. Mandell continuing the favorite at 7 to 5 and 6 to 5, but much support for McLarnin made even money a prospect.

erected and given to the city of Amboy in his appreciation of the success with which his life in this community has been crowned and by which to perpetuate his name in the memory of this community.</p

Dr. McCoy, Los Angeles specialist, will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Telegraph. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

HEALTH BRINGS BEAUTY

Many people consider themselves as being "unfortunately" not beautiful. Have they ever considered the fact that many of them would be much easier on the eyes if they had received the best dietetic and cultural care when they were children.

Any disease if long continued will result in ugliness. Any case of long continued malnutrition, improperly balanced feeding, or gluttony will destroy the proportions of our figures that are supposed to be modeled after the image of God.

If one were describing the symptoms of ugliness, he would be describing disease symptoms as well. It would be impossible to imagine Hercules afflicted with tuberculosis, Diana with gout, Apollo with biliousness, or June with mucous colitis. Just imagine Robin Hood running off with his fair maid Marion if she had weighed two hundred and sixty-five pounds!

The alterations produced by disease are so pronounced that any competent diagnostican can distinguish a healthy person from a sick one by the general appearance. In many cases it is even possible to recognize the principle disease with just a general inspection.

I know that many of the conditions under which we live are not conducive to beauty. One who sits at a desk all day certainly has some disadvantage physically compared with the legendary golden age when all that was necessary was playing leap frog under the trees from which luscious and nourishing fruits fell just when one was ready to eat them.

I believe that our civilization is an improvement over any past age within history. I would rather have an automobile and a radio, a home with hot and cold running water, electric lights and convenient sewage disposal than to live in a palace with the filth and ignorance of the middle ages. We have not reached perfection, and we can always look forward to better things.

One of the drawbacks of a civilized community is that it tends to specialize. An individual must be able to do something uncommonly well or he is very likely to be dragged into the mire of failure. This specializing permits us to use some muscles but neglects others. We may be compelled to occupy a limited number of positions during many hours. This interferes with our health and beauty unless we take special care of our exercise and play.

Each person should develop a hobby that will correct his one-sided work. If he will also eat a correctly balanced diet, such as I outline in my weekly newspaper articles, he may preserve his health and figure for many years longer than the average.

If you wish to avoid physical and mental decay, you should make yourself a specialist in health producing habits.

I am sometimes astounded to observe the remarkable changes that patients undergo while following the right diet, exercise and hygienic methods. Many of them blossom out into astounding beauties, even in cases that look exceedingly hopeless in the beginning. A small thorax will enlarge to normal if one practices deep breathing several times daily. Though your back be crooked, you can improve it by the right kind of exercises.

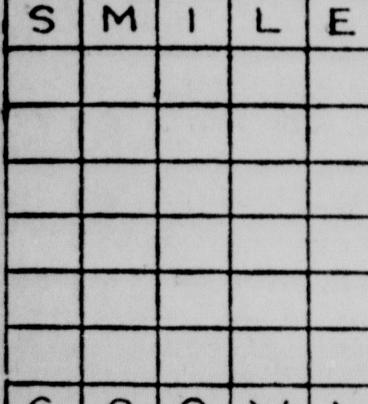

Don't think this is hopeless with yourself. Everyone is capable of improvement unless he is at death's door. So throw out your chest and pull your head back and resolve to day by day become better and better. The time to start is NOW!

NOT SO MUCH DIFFERENT

There's not so much difference after all between SMILE and SCOWL.

In letter golf, there is just seven strokes between them and you may be able to do better than that. One solution is on page 11.

THE RULES

1-The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEN.

2-You can change only one letter at a time.

3-You must have a complete word of common usage, for each pump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

4-The order of letters cannot be changed.

One solution is printed on page 11.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Be ye therefore wise as serpents and harmless as doves.—Matt. 10:16.

The first point of wisdom is to discern that which is false, the second, to know that which is true.—Lactantius.

Insure your auto with Hal Baldwin. Do it today. Tomorrow you may have an accident.

One solution is printed on page 11.

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: J. K. writes: "I have what the doctors call a gastric stomach. Was all right till two months ago. Was told to eat soft foods. Have been doing that but still suffer from the gas which comes up about two hours after eating. No pains, except that it bothers my heart. The gas will move up and down, and I have to sip hot water to get relief."

ANSWER: The word "gastric" means stomach, so you were apparently mistaken about what the doctor said. He doubtless said you were suffering from gastritis which means inflammation of the stomach, as your symptoms seem to indicate that this is your trouble. Nothing could be worse for you than to take the "soft foods." The irritation in your stomach is not produced by foods which are too coarse, but rather by an over amount of hydrochloric acid in the gastric juice. The "soft" diet given for gastritis actually produces more trouble and is exactly the wrong diet for you to take. Leave out sugars and starches and balance your meals properly if you wish to get rid of excessive gas and stomach irritation. Drink a large amount of water between meals to keep the digestive fluids diluted until they naturally reduce in quantity because of your change to a correct diet.

QUESTION: Mrs. John B. asks: "Will you please explain through the health column what is meant by 'deextrinized food'?"

ANSWER: Deextrinized food is that which has been thoroughly toasted or browned all the way through, thus changing any starch that particular food may have into what is called dextrin. In this form the digestive organs are saved much work, as the deextrinizing process prepares the food for immediate assimilation. When the starch itself is eaten, it must be converted into a substance similar to dextrin before it can be assimilated.

Coolidge Endorses
V. F. W. Poppy Sale

The annual sale of Buddy Poppies by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. has been given unanimous approval by President Coolidge and in his message to the public, the nation's chief executive cites the double significance of the Buddy Poppy and its use on Memorial Day.

"It perpetuates and emphasizes a particularly fine symbolism," declared Coolidge, "calling to mind the supreme sacrifices of those who died in the service of our country."

"Such symbolism cannot but have its effect in inspiring us to sacrifices demanded of all good citizens in peace times."

"Furthermore, those who buy these poppies do something very real to help the disabled veterans who in making them are able to contribute to their own support."

"I would command this movement heartily, and my hope is for its continued success."

Practically every post in the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. from coast to coast, in China, the Philippines, the Canal Zone, and even Paris, France, will distribute Buddy Poppies during the week of Memorial Day.

The proceeds are used exclusively for welfare purposes, giving each unit the means of administering relief to veterans and their dependents in distress. The sale of Buddy Poppies also permits maintenance of service and liaison work in behalf of the veteran seeking assistance or compensation from the Veterans Bureau. In addition a certain percentage of the funds gathered in this fashion is contributed to the V. F. W. National Home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., an institution founded in 1925 and dedicated to the care of orphans of deceased veterans.

Natives of Africa use more than 800 languages and dialects.
